Death of Prof. Wm. M. Stewart.

This eminent savant, devoted Christian and excellent man, died on Wednesday, the 26th inst., at 4 o'clock P. M.

Prof. Stewart was born at Philadelphia in March, 1808. Anecdotes of his childhood exhibit him as the observant student of nature even at that early period. He is spoken of as devoting his spare time as early as the age of ten to observing and making collections of insects and shell fish. This tendency received a strong additional impulse when, at twelve years old, he was sent for his health on a voyage to the West Indies, where his powers of observation were exercised on an immensely extended field of study.

In 1832 he came to Tennessee, his first residence being at Lafayette Furnace. His great scientific acquirements largely promoted his successful prosecution of the iron business, in which during twenty years he accumulated a considerable fortune, and in 1852 he moved to Glenwood, his present residence, about two and a half miles from Clarksville, where in a happy and respected seclusion he devoted himself to the scientific pursuits which have been his leading occupation nearly down to the day of his death. The studies of his childhood prefigured those of his manhood and old age, and his collection of the live and dead of the Cumberland river now in the museum of the Southwest University is probably unequalled for its completeness.

When the meteorological discoveries of Lieut. Maury (another discoverer of the live and dead of Tennessee) had occasioned elaborate system of observations extending over the inhabitable world and reported at the Smithsonian institute, which has established meteorology as a science of most important practical application, Prof. Stewart was among the first of the scientific men employed in these observations, and records of his long continued labors in this department are almost unique in their value, being one out of only three such series which were prosecuted uninterruptedly in the Southern States during the war. These were only discontinued about six months before his death.

Some years before the war, when the establishment of a college at Clarksville was set on foot, Prof. Stewart was an eager promoter of the enterprise, and both with money and labor contributed essentially to its success. For several years he and the late Dr. E. B. Haskins gave their gratuitous services to the institution as Professors in the chairs of geology and chemistry respectively, and so high was the recognition of his ability and zeal in the matter that the infant institution was named in his honor, Stewart College.

The war severely tried his fortitude in many respects, his relations to both sections of the country being such as to render the ordinary sorrows of civil strife peculiarly painful in his case; and at the close of the war he found his fortune impaired as well as his feelings lacerated. Christian resignation softened these afflictions, and the patient prosecution of his scientific labors diverted his mind from them. This was the period at which the present writer first had the privilege of his acquaintance. He found him in every respect one whom it was happiness to know; his clear intelligence and abundant information on every subject to which conversation could be directed rendered his society always profitable, and the subdued cheerfulness and highbred courtesy of his manner made it as delightful as it was profitable. His was the best years of his life; he had the grace of Chesterfield without his child, the heartiness of the Western man without his roughness.

For two years before his death the infirmities of age began to tell ominously on a frame originally delicate, and his friends began to feel that the happiness derived from his society could not last long. About six months ago he was compelled to turn over his meteorological instruments to Prof. Caldwell, of the Southwest University, being no longer able to prosecute the observations which had so long constituted the leading occupation of his life. It is our belief that nothing contributed so much to hasten his death as this sacrifice, very few knew what a sacrifice it was. When he could no longer prosecute that which had so long been his leading object of interest in this life, it seemed as if he looked exclusively to a future state as the object of his aspirations, and one of the last sentences we heard from his lips was, "It is not much for me to say I am resigned to death; it is more that I am resigned to living until God shall be pleased to relieve me."

It is not then for him, but for ourselves that we mourn.

"Vex not his ghost; oh let him pass; he hates him; That would upon the rack of this tough world, stretch him out longer."

PUBLIC MEETING.

As soon as the death of Prof. Wm. M. Stewart became known, the Mayor announced a public meeting for the purpose of expressing the sentiments of the community in reference to the event. A large and highly intelligent assembly met in accordance with that summons in the Court House at 11 A. M.

The Hon. D. N. Kennedy moved the election of Rev. Dr. Shearer as Chairman, and Dr. D. F. Wright as Secretary of the meeting.

These motions were carried unanimously.

The Hon. G. A. Henry moved that a committee be appointed to draft resolutions expressive of the sentiments of the meeting, which was carried unanimously, and the Chairman appointed as said committee the Hon. G. A. Henry, Jas. E. Bailey and D. N. Kennedy and Messrs. Geo. Hillman and G. W. Macrae.

While the committee was out of the room Dr. Wright moved that the citizens of Clarksville be requested to close all stores and places of business during the time devoted to the funeral. Unanimously carried.

Major Henry now reappeared and requested in the name of the Committee on Resolutions that in order to do justice to the subject they be allowed to take longer time in their preparation and hand the resolutions when prepared to the Secretary after the meeting. Leave granted.

Major Henry then pronounced an eloquent eulogium on the deceased, holding forth Prof. Stewart's life as a study profitable to all to contemplate, whether he was viewed as a citizen, a man of science or a Christian.

President Shearer followed with an interesting narrative of the deceased's connection with Stewart College as founder, president, professor and benefactor.

The Hon. D. N. Kennedy followed, relating many instances of Christian munificence known to him alone, and concluded with the assertion that the deceased was the most perfect man as Christian gentleman and philanthropist whom he had ever known.

The resolutions since handed to the Secretary ran as follows:

Whereas, It has pleased a merciful Providence to summon to his long desired home and resting place our venerated fellow-citizen Prof. Wm. M. Stewart, we, the Mayor and citizens of Clarksville, Tenn., in public meeting assembled desire to record our sentiments upon the solemn occasion; resolved, therefore,

First—That we submit with deep sorrow but with reverential acquiescence, to the dispensation which has at last released our friend from the sufferings and weariness, which he has so long sustained with heroic fortitude and Christian resignation; and we rejoice in the confident belief that he has now entered upon an eternal life of rest and peace and happiness.

Second—That we sorrow not for the departed, but for our own loss; for the loss to science of one of its ablest expositors; for the loss to education of a most liberal benefactor and a most earnest collaborator; to religion of a shining example and a sympathetic communitarian; to humanity in general of a tried philanthropist, and to his own family of a wise and affectionate parent.

Third—That in the name of this whole community we acknowledge ourselves as the beneficiaries of that manifold spirit which animated him to promote, by splendid gifts of money and money's worth and time and labor, the cause of education in our midst, leaving us a noble inheritance of learning and science as a monument to his genius and his virtues.

Fourth—That we tender to the surviving children of the deceased the tenderest sympathies of our hearts, and we assure them of our sympathy under their bereavement, assuring them of our brotherhood in sorrow, for have not we, too, lost in him a friend and a father?

STUDENTS' MEETING.

At a meeting of the students of the University, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, It has pleased God to remove by death, on the 26th inst., our professor emeritus, Wm. M. Stewart;

Resolved, That we, the students of Stewart College, do realize that in our departed benefactor, we have lost one of our most valued and noblest teachers, and we hereby tender our deepest sympathy to the afflicted relations of the honored and respected friend of our friends and a father.

Resolved, That we send a copy of these resolutions to the Clarksville papers for publication.

JAS. F. JOHNSON,
A. S. CALDWELL,
G. C. THOMSON,
Committee.

THE FUNERAL.

The funeral services were conducted in the Presbyterian Church, which was crowded to its utmost capacity by people of all denominations. A slight shower had taken place just before the arrival of the hearse, and just as the remains were carried from it into the sacred building, a beautiful rainbow spanned with its arch the whole Eastern sky. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Lupton, President Shearer and Prof. Flinn of the Southwest University. The sermon was by Mr. Lupton. We have not much approval for abstracts of sermons by the secular press and will only say that his leading topic was the worthlessness of the body as assailed to earth, contrasted with the infinite value of the soul as claiming its kinship with the Divine Nature. This subject treated with the force and knowledge of the preacher, inspired as he was with the solemn associations of the occasion, was listened to with wrapt attention by everybody present. Indeed we never remember to have witnessed, anywhere or at any time, a more deeply impressed congregation.

The ceremonies were completed at Greenwood Cemetery, the bow of hope being again beautifully displayed just as the earth was being piled over the remains of our departed friend; symbolizing beautifully that hope, the anchor of the soul, which has for him been long fixed firmly within the veil which hides from us the holy of holies, the inner sanctuary of heaven. The procession was the longest we ever witnessed in Clarksville, the population of our city being formed in a long line along a large portion of the length of Greenwood avenue.

THE ORIGINAL GEORGIA MINSTRELS.

Not burnt cork, be it understood, but the genuine article. Genuine Ethiopian fun and pathos, sweet melodies well harmonized and sung with sonorous voices and that unerring accuracy of ear which seems to be a natural gift with the Ethiopian race—these are the attractions which are offered next Monday night by the "Original Georgia Minstrels."

The troupe includes Delaney and Buck, singers and dancers; Neal Moore, personator of the old-time darkey; W. C. Harris, leader of the band; Warwick and Layton, comic duettists; Johnnie Johnson, banjoist and jig dancer, and Irvine Lorenzo, the male soprano, with many other special attractions and the customary chorus and orchestra in a high state of efficiency. If that is not reason enough for an overflowing house, then minstrelsy had better be mute for the future in Clarksville.

THE PORTER RIFLES, of Nashville, gave a splendid exhibition of military skill in St. Louis last Saturday, the 23d inst. Several other companies which were to have competed with them for the prize failed to be on hand, much to the disappointment of the Porter Rifles, who, however, went through the entire drill, and at the close were presented with the prize, a splendid regulation banner. Out of one hundred and fifty evolutions they made only six errors.

Don't forget that Mr. H. M. Dudley will sell, at his residence near St. Bethlehem to-day, his stock and farming utensils; amongst them a reaper, mower and separator. See advertisement and bills for further information.

A WHITE RAT—Master Carter Broadbush, who resides on Greenwood Avenue, caught a white rat, more than half grown, last week. As his ratship had red eyes, a friend suggests that he is an Albino.

It does look as if the bottom, so to speak, has been touched as to prices in everything. Gold is now worth but a trifle more than greenbacks, and goods of every kind are as low as they can well be sold. For a long time real estate has been declining and has gone down until now we believe it has struck bottom also. We hear every day of sales of real estate both in town and country, but the most notable fact is that farming lands are being bought up more generally than at any time since the war. This argues well for the prosperity of the country. Farm lands will soon be more higher than at present, because people begin to see that farming pays, and that lands are cheaper now than they will be again. Mr. Oneal, our County Court Clerk, says that more land has been sold in this county during the present month than any month since the war.

THE Tennessee Conference will meet in Edgeland next Wednesday. We regret to learn that the Rev. Wm. Burr, Presiding Elder of this District, will not return, having been on this work for four years, and the laws of the Church require him to go elsewhere. He is one of the best Presiding Elders in the Conference, and one of the best men we ever knew; we wish he could be returned to us again. Wherever he may go he will carry with him the good wishes of the people of this District. The Rev. R. K. Brown has been our stationed preacher but for two years, and of course will be sent back; our people will not agree to anything else. He is deservedly popular, and is one of the purest of men and a preacher of great ability. We say now that our delegates to Conference had better not come back to Clarksville if they do not bring Bro. Brown with them.

It has been unfortunately rumored in the community that Elder Wm. A. Broadbush had resigned his position as pastor of the Christian Church on account of ill health. We learn from him that he did think it best for the Church to put some one in his place, but the congregation decided not to do so, but to give Elder B. time to rest his throat. He will not preach, but will conduct the usual services by Bible readings. He has an interesting Bible class which meets every Friday night in the lecture room of the Church. He will still give his attention to it, and all are invited.

THE ladies of the Episcopal Church will give a lunch next Monday in the vacant room next door to Keese & Northington's grocery. The proceeds are to be used in furnishing their new church. Our citizens have more than once had the opportunity of finding out that the catering of these ladies means delicate food neatly prepared and served by the most attractive waitresses conceivable.

ON Wednesday of last week a Mrs. Smith, of Indian Mound, in Stewart county, was found lying dead in a secluded portion of the woods in the neighborhood of the village. She had been missing a day and night and on Wednesday morning her friends, who were in search of her, found her, as above stated, lying dead in the woods, shot through the heart. The indications were that she had committed suicide, but it is thought by many that she had been murdered.

ON Thursday last a train was wrecked while ascending the Rocky Hill grade near Bowling Green by the explosion of the engine. The train was thrown thirty feet down an embankment; three men were killed and seven wounded. Several fine racers on the way to the Louisville races were either killed or fatally injured.

LIEUT. DUNCAN BROWN and Mr. Carter, of the Porter Rifles, stopped over in our city on their return from St. Louis. If all the Rifles present the same soldierly bearing that these gentlemen do, we don't wonder that other companies declined to contest with them for the championship of the Southwest. Tennessee feels proud of their brilliant triumph.

MR. C. R. LOVELL has just received a new lot of handsome furniture, consisting of bureaus, bedsteads, chairs, etc., all of which are worth what he asks for them. Those wishing to have furniture repaired will find in Mr. Lovell a competent workman, and one who will be sure to give satisfaction.

REV. J. R. PLUMMER, President of Female Academy, delivered an able and interesting sermon at the Methodist Church last Sunday upon the Atonement. It was elaborate, and furnished food for thought. It is but seldom we hear a better sermon.

We call the attention of our readers to the new advertisement of Coulter Bros. & Stratton. These gentlemen have now in their house goods of every variety, from the finest to the cheapest, and are able to suit both your taste and your purse. Call and examine their new stock.

MR. B. K. GOLD sold his residence in New Providence last Saturday to Mr. John K. Smith for the sum of $8,000. The place is amply worth the money, but owing to the shrinkage in values we consider it a very good sale.

DR. J. R. DUNN, of Turnersville, Tenn., will lecture in this city next week for the purpose of practicing his profession. He comes to us highly recommended as a gentleman and a physician. We give him a hearty welcome.

THE Champions of the Red Cross will meet at their hall next Wednesday night at 7 o'clock. All members are earnestly requested to be on hand promptly at that hour, as business of importance will come before the Encampment.

A WHITE RAT—Master Carter Broadbush, who resides on Greenwood Avenue, caught a white rat, more than half grown, last week. As his ratship had red eyes, a friend suggests that he is an Albino.

OBITUARY.

Death of Thomas M. Duff.

Thomas M. Duff, who had long been a citizen of Clarksville, died at the residence of his son, in the town of Erin, Tenn., on the 23d of September, 1877, in the 74th year of his age. His death was caused by a fall, which happened early on Friday morning, as he was coming down stairs he slipped and fell. His physicians did not find any limb broken, though he was badly bruised. He died in about eighteen hours after the fall. He was born in the State of Virginia, and his father moved to Montgomery county when he was very young. His son Thomas located in Clarksville, where he lived nearly all his life. He was a constant and the constant attendant on the courts in Clarksville for forty years. As a conservator of the public peace he was an invaluable officer; he seemed to regard himself as being under a solemn obligation to keep the peace, to maintain the law and arrest the violators, and always acted accordingly. He was a good and faithful officer and fearlessly arrested and brought to punishment all who did not respect and obey the laws. Very often have I seen him by his mere presence, with a small piece of paper in his hand, command the peace, and quell and disperse a lawless crowd who had more dread of his resolute determination to keep the peace than reverence for the majesty of the law. He seemed to think it was his duty, as a peace officer, to protect society against all who violated its peace by promptly arresting them and handing them over to the judicial tribunals of the county, and faithfully did he fulfill that mission.

He had many opportunities to witness his power as a peace officer. However quiet he may have been during the stormy season of a canvass, his influence was sure to be felt at the polls on the day of elections. In politics he was an ardent Whig, and though he never aspired to office himself higher than a Justice of the Peace or a Constable, he was a very sincere and effective collaborator in the cause he believed to be right, or for the triumph of the man whose principles he admired, and to whom he was personally attached, and he had as warm personal attachments as any man I ever knew, and was firm as a rock. He was among the oldest citizens of Clarksville at the time of his death, and leaves behind him many who retain cherished recollections of his fidelity to his duty, his principles and his friends. His remains were brought back here on the cars on Sunday and on Monday were interred in the old family graveyard on a place where his father lived and died and where his son, Thomas M. Duff, the subject of this notice was raised. Peace to his ashes.

A TRAMP printer was murdered at Stevenson, Ala., a few days ago, by two negroes. His gold watch and diamond pin were missing. We are not surprised that he was murdered and robbed.

Our farmers have now about a week to finish cutting their tobacco. It is by far the best crop they have had for years, and great care should be taken in housing and firing.

TILDEN is expected in New York October 15.

NEW JEWELRY FIRM.

Rohrer and Auling, Postoffice Building, Clarksville, Tenn.

I beg leave to inform my patrons and the public in general that I have taken Mr. Henry Auling as a partner in my business and that, from the 20th of September, we will carry on our business as watchmakers and jewelers under the firm name of ROHRER & AULING, at the old place in the Postoffice, with a fine selection of watches, clocks, spectacles, etc.

Mr. Auling is a thoroughly practical watchmaker, fully competent to repair the finest watches and the finest French clocks or to make new ones. What I am able to do is sufficiently known to the public. My customers are assured that they will be waited upon by us to their fullest satisfaction. All work done and all goods sold by us are warranted, and if not satisfactory, money will be refunded.

Returning my hearty thanks to my customers for the confidence placed in me, I beg them, as well as the public in general, to favor the new firm with their calls. Respectfully,
THOMAS ROHRER,
Watchmaker and Jeweler.

Referring to the above announcement of Mr. Rohrer, I take the liberty to inform the public that, after an apprenticeship of five years in the most prominent watch establishment of Bremen, Germany, at A. Felsing's, and seven years of work in some of the best establishments in Germany as well as in the United States, I may justly assert that I am able to meet all the requirements in the watchmaking business. For the last three months I was the only workman at Mr. L. Gauchat's in this city, and those ladies and gentlemen who, during that time, have had their watches repaired at the above place, may know what kind of work I furnish. Being now determined to work no longer as a mere journeyman, I have entered into a partnership with Mr. Rohrer, and therefore I request the public to favor us with their calls.
